MEMORANDUM

November 16, 1944.

A person in contact with Breakers who arrived a few days ago from Germany traveled for 58 hours from Berlin to the Swiss border - trip which in normal times requires 14 hours.

Our traveler stated that in those parts of Germany, which are more or less constantly threatened by air-raids, trains follow no longer any fixed schedule as to time or route. In these territories, the route which the train is to take is determined at each station.
